Notes for Researchers on UMT and Conscription in the FONL files 1931-55 mainly

Important other sources which should be consulted:

1. Five bound volumes on Disarmament and Conscription in the FONL. Library Archives in Washington covering the period 19th-—. Some, but not all of the material is on file at the Wilmington College Library.

2. Complete sets of Conscription News no 1-252 running from 1941-1959 published by the National Council Against Conscription and edited and largely written by John Swomley. One set is on file in the Swarthmore Peace Collection, one bound set in the Library of Congress and one set in the Library of Congress and one set in the FONL archives.

3. The FONL Washington Newsletter, action bulletins and FONL memos from 1941 through 1969 will give a partial running summary of major conscription developments.

4. Hearings before House and Senate Committees over the years, some of which have been transferred to Swarthmore, some of which are on file at the FONL and others of which can be consulted in the Library of Congress.

5. There is no complete segregation in these FONL files between activities against Universal Military Training (UMT), Selective Service enactment and extension and against a compulsory reserve system, so the labels on the folders are not completely accurate at this point.

The campaign against UMT ran intensively between 1941 and March 1932 when the UMT bill was defeated by recommital. Folders for the various years do not follow a completely consistent pattern. Action refers to activities against UMT by the FONL and/or other organizations.

Material for and against UMT is scattered throughout the years when date of publication was available. The most nearly complete file of National Council Against Conscription pamphlets and flyers is contained in the 1951-52 files.

Where folders contain material for more than one year, the folders are filed in the latter year.

The minutes of the FONL contain reference to important decisions; including special campaign and financial reports of extra-budgetary funds solicited.

There is very little material in these conscription files for the years after 1955, for 1950, and 1953-54. I do not have an explanation for the small amount of material for some of the years. Apparently there was no major legislation activity and no major FONL effort.

There is some correspondence on UMT scattered through the FONL Correspondence files from 1941 on. For the most part this correspondence is not indexed.

Material bearing on disarmament and FONL sponsored disarmament activities conferences is in a special disarmament file—again not complete in itself—which has been retained at FONL headquarters as background material for the current international disarmament talks. This will be deposited at Swarthmore later.

This conscription material has been organized by Betty Taylor and J. Raymond Wilson, during 1969 from 19-25 years after it was originally produced; so there has been no opportunity to complete files where material was missing. But we hope that this collection will help future historians and scholars appreciate the intensity of the national debate and national activities pro and con first on the drive for enactment of compulsory military training and from 1950-69 for enactment and extension of the Selective Service System, commonly called the draft.

In 1969 a national council to Repeal the draft was formed in which Charles H. Harker of the FONL staff was quite active. The future will have to reveal when the American people are freed from military conscription.

The box numbers on the table of contents refers to the cartons in which this material was packed for transfer to the Swarthmore Peace Collection and in which the files will be stored until placed in permanent library containers.

Notes on the Miscellaneous Issues File

These files are suggestions only and not definitive about the activities of the FCML in these various areas. These files should be checked against the FCML newsletters and the rest of the material in the FCML bound volumes in the FCML headquarters, against the cumulative gray boxes of reference material in the FCML library which are weeded out from time to time, and against the correspondence files.

UNIT and Conscription Files were completed. Most of the material came from the National Council for Prevention of War Files which Frederick J. Libby gave years ago to Raymond Wilson. There was not time available to check against the other boxes so there will be some duplication. For was there time to re-sort the contents by years, hence the folders overlap in years. It seemed logical to put this with the conscription files. UNIT, Peaceetime Conscription and selective service are used somewhat interchangeably in these files so the dates and actions regarding extension of selective service are not all clearly segregated.)
