Elihu Burritt to Charles Sanman Esq.

Charles Sanman Esq.

My Dear Sir:

My friend Tyler, of Norwich, put into my hands, a day or two since, the interesting little volume which you designed as an expression of your kindly consideration. I shall prize it highly as such, I assure you; and I would present you my most cordial acknowledgements for such an evidence of your respect and good will. I am just on the point of starting on a tour to the Westward, and have not had time to read but a few pages of it; but I was delighted with the spirit of youthful fancy which pervaded these, and which gave such an animated vivacity to the reminiscences of your youth. I promise myself much pleasure in perusing the remainder of the volume, not doubting that it is replete with brilliant thoughts and refined sentiments.

Hoping that I may yet be able to make your personal acquaintance here or in Norwich, I remain Yours Very Cordially

Elihu Burritt
