

London, Aug. 3. 1855

My Dear Brother

I am truly sorry you cannot come over to England; for I am still confident the voyage would do you good, and that it might be well for your business. But you may make the voyage some time yet. I engaged berths in the second cabin of the Canada, yesterday. It is to leave Liverpool on the 9th of September. The fare is fifteen guineas each, or about 80 dollars. If you could send $100, it would leave a little for expenses on both ends of the voyage, in travelling from London to Liverpool and from Boston to New-Bontem, hotel charges &c. I should be very glad also if you could send it early enough to enable Anna to go to Paris before we return. She is exceedingly anxious to go. I have now spent all my own money, and shall have hard work to raise enough to pay my own passage.

If you could have conveniently sent $125 we could have made Mrs Inglis a small present for her great kindness ^{to Anna}.
No one could have been more generous and affectionate to her. I intend to send her something from America if possible.
If Anna had been her only daughter or sister, she could not have treated her with greater affection and tenderness.
I hope Anna will be very helpful to you when she returns, and add much to your happiness.

Yours truly & ever yours 1261. Bennett
