

My dear Mr. Burritt,

I am delighted [underline in original] at the thought of seeing you; come at any time to-morrow [sic] that may be most convenient to you, & be sure of a hearty English welcome. I have been confined to my home for some days which will account for my not having seen ~~the~~ [crossed out in original] your lecture advertised; & I feel much disappointment that I am not well enough to get to it. I should have been inclined to venture myself but I know it would [indecipherable] by [indecipherable] so I must give it up & look forward to the very great pleasure of seeing you to-morrow.

[second page in original]

I remain, dear Mr Burritt

Faithfully yours

Ellen Hopkins

[indecipherable] House

[indecipherable]

Wednesday