We have reached London safe, and are already settled down here. We had a delightful time in our sea voyage.

everyone arrived at King's Lynn, Norfolk, Norfolk, Birmingham, and Warwick. In these towns, we met large companies of ladies connected with the country, and had a most enjoyable time. We enjoyed our journey exceedingly. We met very kind people at most of the towns, who welcomed us with open arms.

The country was all in the glory of spring, and the fields were green and beautiful. We visited the country and enjoyed the scenery.

The weather was quite warm, and we enjoyed the outdoor life very much.

Dinner was served in the hotel, and we ate heartily. We visited the city of London, and the subway was quite crowded. We met many kind people, and everyone was very kind to us.

and see the scenery before winter comes on. When she returns to London, I hope she will commit a regular course of study which shall be useful & beneficial to her.

I have bought her a small book, and she intends to write in it every day. So when she returns to you next year, I hope her manuscript book will be quite valuable to you. Today we go to the British Museum, and expect to be there most of the day. Before we go, I hope she will be able to copy off a sheet of her journal to send you, and would be grateful if you would return her any account of your voyage. It will seem like a weekly visit to you, if she sends a sheet of her journal every week. She is well and walks a good deal, and I hope she will get more strength from the exercise. I shall try to do all in my power to make this journey profitable to her in every way, so that when she returns to America she may be of increased value to you, and more able to assist you in your business. I have just finished preparing matter for the first number of the British Museum, so cannot write much by this letter. Next week, I hope to send a larger packet of letters.

With affectionate regards to all our family.
