Thomas Finholt '83
I have benefited tremendously from my experiences at Swarthmore and I am eager to pay back some of that debt through service on the Alumni Council. I am currently deeply invested in higher education, both as a parent with kids in college, and as the dean of the School of Information at the University of Michigan. This joint perspective provides a unique vantage to help advise Swarthmore on the many challenges ahead, such as making the case for liberal arts education and finding ways to eliminate educational privilege.

Katherine Pearce Gledhill '80
I look forward to working with fellow alumni to foster and uphold the Swarthmore commitment to academic rigor, inclusivity, civic responsibility, and Quaker values. These principles have underpinned my approach to life in my finance career, and as a parent, friend, coworker, and mentor.

John Goodman '60
For sixty years I've been proud and grateful to have been so lucky as to get a Swarthmore education. The critical thinking and communication skills I honed here prepared me very well for many different kinds of career steps (college professor, consultant, interactive science museum founder/designer, grant writer, inventor, and more) than I could have imagined. I want to help Swarthmore continue its tradition of admitting, supporting, and educating students who will be competent, creative, and compassionate world citizens.

Daniela Kucz '14
I'm based in DC with my husband Shreyas ('14) and our dog Jasper (a product of the Quaker Matchbox), where I am growing federal health business for a global tech company. Having received great support from the Swarthmore alumni community since I was a student, I'm excited to give back and help further build the community for the benefit of both current students and alumni.

Frank Kyei-Manu '06
I am a father, a husband, and passionate about technology and its use to improve people's livelihood. I work in technology and live in Seattle, Wash. I deeply value the experiences, connections, and friendships Swarthmore College has given me, and I am humbled by the chance to serve in any capacity.

Sean Thakurdeen '12
I am an environmental anthropologist working at the intersection of philanthropy, science, and policy. Before philanthropy, I spent seven years working to preserve plant culture in the South
Ian Yarett '09
After graduating from Swarthmore in 2009, I first worked as a writer and editor for Newsweek magazine before going back to school to pursue a career in medicine. I’m now completing my residency in Internal Medicine at NYU. I look back on my Swarthmore years with great appreciation and am re-inspired by the campus community every time I visit. I hope to have the opportunity to give back to this community as a member of the Alumni Council.

Jason Zengerle '96
I graduated in 1996 with a political science major and an art history minor. I live with my wife ('97) and our son and daughter in Chapel Hill, N.C. I’m a writer for The New York Times Magazine.