History 8a is a survey course, a broad overview of an area of historical inquiry. The most important goal for students in this course is to acquire a strong command over the content, but we will also be working with important skills associated with the discipline of history: reading primary and secondary sources, analytic writing, search and discovery of relevant information, and the formation of useful questions and arguments.

The course focuses on Western Africa, a region that stretches from present-day Mauritania to present-day Cameroon along the coast and as far inland as Chad. It begins with the formation of large imperial states along the upper Niger River and the borders of the Sahara Desert and then examines the transformations of the region associated with the development of the Atlantic slave trade. Students will consider the causes, development and consequences of the Atlantic slave trade primarily from the perspective of Western African societies. We will put Western Africa into the wider picture of world history over the last millennium and in so doing understand the present and its limitations with new urgency and specificity.

Course grades are based on two short papers, a midterm quiz, a variety of small response assignments and a final exam. The final grade is heavily weighted towards the final exam. Attendance and participation in class are also important to the final grade. Please contact the Dean’s Office if you have an extended illness, personal crisis or other issue that may cause you to miss more than two or so class sessions.

You may use laptops or other electronic devices to facilitate taking notes and to consult relevant course-related materials during a class session. Do not open a browser window or other application to social media or to unrelated materials during a class session. You are responsible for yourself—and your attention and investment in learning is your own business up to the point where you interfere with others. Having YouTube or a game or social media visible on your laptop interferes with the experience of other students. Do not abuse my willingness to allow laptop use for your own notetaking and learning by abusing the learning experiences of your peers.

If you believe that you need accommodations for a disability, please contact the Office of Student Disability Services (Parrish 113W) or email studentdisabilityservices@swarthmore.edu to arrange an appointment to discuss your needs. As appropriate, the Office will issue students with documented disabilities a formal Accommodations Letter. Since accommodations require early planning and are not retroactive, please contact the Office of Student Disability Services as soon as possible. For details about the accommodations process, visit the Student Disability Service Website at http://www.swarthmore.edu/academic-advising-support/welcome-to-student-disability-service. You are also welcome to contact me [the faculty member] privately to discuss your academic needs. However, all disability-related accommodations must be arranged through the Office of Student Disability Services.
