PEAC 104/EDUC 104
HUMANITARIANISM: EDUCATION IN EMERGENCIES

This honors seminar will explore paradigms of humanitarian aid, particularly focusing on the subfield of “education in emergencies.” The semester will begin by considering Western forms of humanitarian aid in relation to other forms of aid, such as mutual aid and solidarity. Next, we will explore the relationship between education and armed conflict, including the role of outside education providers. We will discuss the ways in which global discourses and norms shape humanitarian aid to education. We will finish the semester by specifically looking at refugee education. Throughout the semester we will interrogate the extent to which humanitarian aid helps to improve people’s lives and to achieve social justice and equity. Case studies will include Afghanistan, Guatemala, Nepal, Palestine, Rwanda, Sierra Leone, and Kenya.

Professor Amy Kapit

Wednesday
7:00pm - 10:00pm

Scan to learn more about the Department of Peace and Conflict Studies

GLBL-paired